"I would hate to see [your] reputation tarnished in some Way." — Timothy Lessard, Clearfield, Utah

RING OF TRUTH

I was reading the article "Emerging better and stronger" (Page 20) in your February edition and I noticed the photograph of the U.S. Air Force captain inspecting the weapon carriage with GBU-39/B Small Diameter Bombs. I noticed something odd in the photo and it jumped right out me.

Being a former Air Force missileer, aircraft maintainer and maintenance trainer, I noticed that this captain was wearing a ring. As anyone who has ever had the pleasure of being a maintainer knows (as I have), the wearing of rings is strictly forbidden and is a personal safety violation. I'm sure I'm not the only one who noticed this item and this picture could be construed as a normal practice.

As a note to the editor, I believe it would be a good business practice to ensure the integrity of photos, safety or otherwise, before being placed in this periodical. It is a great publication, and I would hate to see its reputation tarnished in some way.
